

Mar Cheshvan 5782 - October / November 2021 Coalition for Jewish Learning E-Newsletter

The holidays are over, the year is well underway.

How do you feel entering Cheshvan, a month with no holidays? Is it a relief to be returning to a normal schedule or are you sad to see the holidays go? For me, it is a little of each!

What will you do with all your extra time? Never fear, CJL has many classes and activities to keep you busy. I want to call special attention to our new BINAH cohort, starting in October. It isn't too late to apply. Join a small group of teachers to learn and grow throughout the year. Learn more and apply here.

We have added a bunch of new LOMED classes related to the theme of inclusion and making everyone feel welcome in the classroom. The classes are in two parts to give you a chance to learn, practice, and then learn some more. Read more below!

Establishing Beginning of the Day Rituals

One of my first teaching jobs when I was in my early twenties living in Boston was for a very "energetic" first grade Sunday School class. After the first Sunday of our first day together I left in tears. I went to the Education Director and expressed my frustration with not being able to calm the chaos. He took one look at me and asked, "Did you write the daily schedule on the board?" I replied no and took this tip to my next class session. And low and behold it worked! Why? The students knew what to expect. It removed the mystery, wonder and anxiousness out of the day by knowing what was yet to come. How can you do the same for your class?

The beginning of a class session can set the tone for the rest of the class. Here are some tips:

Write the daily schedule on the board. Depending on the age, use words or pictures. List the activities:

- Prayer Review
- Hebrew Games
- Clean Up

List actual times:

- 4:15-4:45 pm Prayer Review

- 4:45-5:15 pm Hebrew Games
- 5:15-5:30 pm Clean Up

This is also a great opportunity to incorporate Hebrew by using the Hebrew word for the activity.

Go over the schedule with your class at the beginning of the day. Check off each activity as you complete it throughout the session.

Some students may benefit from an individualized schedule on a piece of paper or small whiteboard at their desk. They can also check off each activity as it is completed.

Write on the whiteboard the directions for what to do when you walk into the classroom at the beginning of the day. For example, hang up your coat on the hook, put your homework on the teacher's desk, complete page 4 in your workbook.

LOMED: Learning Opportunities for Milwaukee Educators

LOMED classes are open to all educators working at Milwaukee Jewish schools. The $300 stipend for completing 10 hours of training is available to all teachers participating in the program.

At this point, all classes are scheduled on Zoom. I will let you know if any switch to being in person.

LOMED Classes

One Class, Many Students: How to Meet Everyone's Learning

Needs with Jennifer Saber, CJL Keshet Inclusion Specialist
(Two part class, 3 credits total for attending both classes)

Thursday, October 28, 2021 6:30-8 pm

Thursday, December 16, 2021 6:30-8 pm

All students have different learning needs. So how do you walk into your classroom to teach the same subject to each of those students? Learn how to use differentiation to tailor instruction and reach every student. Support and mentoring available between the two classes.

Placemaking Workshop with Beverly Socher-Lerner of Makom Communities, Part 1

(Two part class, 3 credits total for attending both classes)

Wednesday, November 10, 2021, 7-8:30 pm

What does Jewish Placemaking bring to a congregational school? How does it shift the learning experience? After this session, you'll understand the outcomes Jewish Placemaking can lead to and how learners' agency comes into play in the process. You'll get to experience Jewish Placemaking, learn the theory behind it, and reflect on the experience as a whole.

Placemaking Workshop with Beverly Socher-Lerner of Makom Communities, Part 2

(Two part class, 3 credits total for attending both classes)

Wednesday, January 12, 2022, 7-8:30 pm

At Makom Community, we explore Jewish text as a platform for helping our learners grow their skills for emotional intelligence and empathy. They practice identifying, naming, and regulating their feelings and responding to both their own emotional experiences and the experiences of characters in our text or friends in their classroom with curiosity and compassion. Learn how we can combine those skills into a spiritual practice or a way of connecting to something larger than ourselves.

Introduction to LGBTQ Belonging in the Classroom With Jackie Maris of Keshet

(Two part class, 4 credits total for attending both classes)

Tuesday, February 1, 2022, 6:30-8:30 pm

Tuesday, March 8, 2022, 6:30-8:30 pm

This two-part training is designed for teachers seeking to create an LGBTQ-affirming environment for students, colleagues, and the school community at large. The first session will discuss LGBTQ terms and concepts, will delve into LGBTQ youths' experiences, and will examine cisnormativity and heteronormativity. The second session - grounded in the information from the first - will address curriculum and representation, culture and language, school policies, and interventions into microaggressions and bullying. Both sessions focus on building shared vocabulary and awareness around LGBTQ identities and identifying ways in which participants can build a community of equality and belonging for LGBTQ people.
